

Enhance the Impact of Your Career through Recognition and Awards

There are many opportunities available at the national and international level for faculty to be recognized for their teaching, research, and outreach excellence. Awards are an important component of faculty careers and enhance the profile of UNL's departments and colleges. UNL's External Recognition and Awards Coordinator helps faculty pursue national and international honors important in their disciplines. In doing so, faculty are more prepared to apply for external awards while contributing to a campus culture that celebrates recognition of academic achievement. Support is available for department executive officers and faculty interested in being nominated and nominating their colleagues for recognition, including:

- Identifying opportunities that align with faculty qualifications
- Developing collaborative strategies for award nomination
- Reviewing program guidelines and eligibility
- Serving as a sponsor and reference liaison
- Drafting and editing nomination materials
- Monitoring progress toward deadlines
